Specific-Logical-Efficient

Since from a physical point of view—vertebral sub-luxations (misplacements) are the underlying cause of by far the majority of all diseases, vertebral adjustments becomes the most LOGICAL and EFFICIENT REMEDY.

It occupies this distinguished position in the healing art because it operates in COMPLETE HARMONY with the most patent and dominating fact of Therapeutics—a fact to which all HEALTH agencies give assent in theory but which the majority of them deny in practice. This fact is that in every case nature does all the curing, all the physician can do is to assist nature by removing the obstacles which interfere with her curative process.

Chiropractic is today more SPECIFIC, logical and efficient in its application than any other known Therapeutic system because it removes the underlying cause of disease.

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The Ford Sedan, with electric self-starting and lighting system and demountable rims with 3 1/2-inch tires front and rear, for every day in the year has no equal as a family car. Just as popular on the farm as it is in the city. In fact, it fits the family demands in every vocation of life. Large, roomy seats, finely upholstered, plate glass windows make it an open car in pleasant weather, while in rainy and inclement weather it becomes a closed car, dust-proof and rain-proof. It is not only comfortable, but really cozy, and above all, economical in operation and maintenance, and has all the Ford merits of strength and durability.

COX NOMINATED BY DEMOCRATS ON 44TH BALLOT

GOVERNOR OF OHIO IS CHOSEN
BY ACCLAMATION AFTER
PALMER WITHDRAWAL
TURNS TIDE.

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S CLAN
SWINGS VOTE TO WINNER

Nomination Fought By McAdoo Forces
Until Defeat Was Certain—Adjourn Till Tuesday to Pick
Vice-President.

Auditorium, San Francisco.—James M. Cox, governor of Ohio, was nominated for president of the United States in the Democratic national convention at 1:40 o'clock (4:40 in Detroit) Tuesday morning. The nomination came at the conclusion of a 44 ballot struggle, in which he had steadily beaten down the forces of William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, and President Wilson's son-in-law.

When the balloting on the forty-fourth vote had got to a point where Cox had 702 votes and was rapidly approaching the necessary two-thirds or 729, Sam B. Amidon, of Kansas, manager of the McAdoo forces and vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, took the platform and moved that the nomination of Governor Cox be made unanimous.

Immediately there was a roar from the tired and worn delegates which lasted for a full four minutes before Chairman Robinson could put the question on Amidon's motion to suspend the rules and nominate Cox by acclamation.

State standards which had surged back and forth in the desperate battles of the deadlock raced to the front of the hall and to a place before the platform.

In the confusion and excitement of a nomination everybody forgot about a nomination for vice-president. While the crowd was demonstrating its release a motion to adjourn until Tuesday afternoon was adopted to canvass the question of second place in the meantime and meet again prepared to complete the ticket.

Michigan Vote Divided.

Michigan delegates for the last five ballots were divided, 16 for Cox and 14 for McAdoo.

Attorney General Palmer at 9:45 Monday night, at the close of the thirty-eighth ballot released his delegates and left the Democratic national convention free to move out of its deadlock and nominate a presidential candidate.

At the end of the second ballot after the recess when the Palmer vote had touched 211 and it was apparent that it could be driven no higher, former Representative C. C. Carlin, of Virginia, Palmer's manager, took the platform and announced the withdrawal of the attorney general from the race.

Cox Candidate of Wets.

The liquor issue hung over the convention Monday like a pall, backed by the wets, could not be budged much above the one-third proportion of the party session that voted for a wet plank. The dry two-thirds refused to warm up to the Ohio governor for the head of the ticket. But the dry two-thirds was divided between McAdoo, Palmer and numerous favorite sons and it was evident no progress could be made until one or more of the candidates should be eliminated or an agreement reached on a dark horse.

100 TUBERCULAR EX-SOLDIERS CAN BE CARED FOR AT GRAYLING.

(By Roy C. Vandercook.)

Lansing, July 2.—Plans were adopted by the Michigan war preparedness board at a meeting Thursday to provide for use of the hospital on the state military reservation at Grayling for ex-service men suffering with tuberculosis, the hospital to be operated by the staff of the Howell tuberculosis sanatorium. The board decided on this course after Dr. A. H. Hume of Owosso, Michigan, director of the United States public health service, had recommended it.

The doctor, who is a former service man and was in charge of the

JULY TERM OF CIRCUIT COURT TO CONVENE NEXT TUESDAY.

Cases on Docket Consist Mostly of Chancery Cases.

Circuit court for the July term will convene at the Court house in this city next Tuesday, Hon. Guy E. Smith, circuit judge, of Gladwin, and Claude L. Austin, court stenographer for this judicial circuit will be present.

The following cases will be disposed of at that time: One jury-civil case, George W. Parker vs. Ray Baldwin, appeal from Justice court. One non-jury civil case, Charles Brown vs. Otto W. Roeser, garnishment.

There are nine cases in the chancery list:
Robert W. Dunn vs. Ernest P.

WHILE MICHIGAN CITIES BREAK CENSUS RECORDS

There are 1,750,000 acres A-1 farm land vacant in the state. The Michigan State Fair is seeking to remedy this by making farming more profitable.

Michigan bureau in New York during the war, frankly informed the board that ex-service men would not go to hospitals operated by the government. "They are fed up on the government," he declared. "Anything which smacks of federal officialdom has their intense dislike and it would be hard to get them into a government operated hospital until it was too late. In my judgment I think it would be a good thing, too, if this was termed an American Legion hospital. The boys have had enough of things official."

After discussing all phases of the matter the board decided the best thing to do would be to ask the Howell organization to take charge of the matter, either the war board or the board of state auditors to provide what means are required. Under that plan civilians will run the hospital and the United States government will pay $3 a day for each ex-service man treated there.

Dr. Hume gave the board figures which differed from those presented by ex-service men who appeared here recently. He stated that while there are about 1,100 cases of tuberculosis among the former soldiers of Michigan, as stated by the legion men, not all require attention and some are now in sanatoriums. He said, however, there are 46 men who should be sent to a sanatorium at once.

It is estimated there are quarters for about 100 patients at the Grayling hospital. Climatic conditions are said to be excellent and the buildings in fine condition for use.

At Oden a hatchery for brook trout and bass will be established, at Hastings will be one for bass, perch and bluegills and at Benton Harbor another for the same species. At Harrisville more trout and bass will be grown, while up at Bay Port will be the perch hatchery.

"DOUBLE PERSONALITY."

SYNOPSIS—Alighting from a train at Denver a well-dressed traveler is familiarly accosted by a man about his own age. The traveler ignores the advance. A few minutes later he is greeted as "Will" by an elderly lady and "gentleman," who stops her auto to speak. He imagines it a case of mistaken identity and announces himself as "Richard Clinton," on his way to the coast. The couple appear greatly surprised and leading him to be in town until midnight, the lady, introducing herself as Mrs. Kirkland, and her husband as Doctor Kirkland, invites him to dinner, explaining the action by his truly remarkable resemblance to a friend of theirs. He accepts. At the Kirklands' home he meets a young lady who greets him as her fiancé. She is Ellen Kirkland, and plainly is greatly hurt by his assertion that he is "Richard Clinton."

"Miss Kirkland," he begged. "Calm yourself. This is most unfortunate. Had you first seen your mother—had she explained to you—prepared you."

"Explained? Prepared?"

"But I must insist, Miss Kirkland, that I—"

"He glanced past her and smiled with relief. 'Here is your mother.'"

The girl darted along the porch to clasp her mother's arm. "Mamma! She appeared! What is it? Tell me! Will insists he is not—not himself. It—it frightens me."

"My dear," soothed Mrs. Kirkland, "there is no reason, none whatever. Had you been in your room—"

"She smiled at the guest. 'You will understand, Mr. Clinton, the resemblance being so absurdly close. The child is excited—not quite herself. So great a shock. If you will kindly excuse us a few minutes.'"

"I am very sorry," he said. "Perhaps it would be better if I should go."

"Oh! no, no! Do not go!" hysterically cried the girl.

"Hush, dear," reproved her mother. "Mr. Clinton is not going. He is to stay and dine with us."

"If you really wish it," he assented. "Then you'll not go?" exclaimed the girl.

"Of course not, Ellen," said her mother. "Come in with me."

CHAPTER II.

Bonds.

Left alone on the porch the guest again faced the sunset. But the dazzling glories of red and gold were already fading into the gray of twilight. He looked absently at the blackened bulk of the mountains, his expression shifting between annoyance and amusement, curiosity and apprehension.

He was still evidently considering the situation when a small touring car came whirling along the street in the clear twilight. It stopped before the house and Doctor Kirkland sprang out with a briskness unusual in a gentleman of his portly figure. He came up to the porch, his alert gaze on the lone guest.

"What's this?" he demanded. "Don't mean to say you've been left all this time to entertain yourself?"

"Not all the time," smilingly replied the guest. "On the contrary Miss Kirkland and I—"

"His look became grave. "Much to my regret Miss Kirkland made the same mistake as Mrs. Kirkland and yourself."

"Naturally. But if her mother—"

"She had gone in when Miss Kirkland came around the house. I regret that my insistence on my identity rather overcame her."

"Not surprising, when she is engaged to you, is it?"

"Engaged to me! You mean of course—"

"To your double, to Will Lowrie," explained the physician. "Do you need further proof that you are his double?"

"No more. She was still quite positive. I fear, after all my attempts to convince her of the mistake. However, Mrs. Kirkland came, and no doubt has explained the mistake to her."

"Very likely," agreed the physician. "I would have gone had they not very kindly insisted that I must remain."

"You must."

"It is very hospitable of you to insist. Still I do not wish to cause your daughter the slightest distress."

"Nothing would distress her more than—the physician considered the point—"than to have you refuse our hospitality."

"That being so I am very glad to stay. I've been recalling the fact that men even of national prominence have doubles who are mistaken for them. My resemblance to Mr. Lowrie is not so strong as I at first thought."

"Not at all," replied Doctor Kirkland, his shrewd eyes twinkling.

The guest stepped into the reception hall, and found himself in a well-furnished, comfortable home. The rooms were bright with the mellow radiance of indirect electric lighting. The little housemaid appeared to take the stairway to his room.

When he came down he found his host and hostess waiting for him in the drawing room. The doctor still wore his professional frock coat. As he rose to meet his guest the maid announced dinner. Miss Ellen was not with her parents.

Mrs. Kirkland chatted familiarly with Clinton as he led him into the dining room. She observed him look at the housemaid with amused expectancy.

"No," she remarked, quick to catch his thought. "Mary will not be calling you Mr. Lowrie. She was not with us when you—when Will left."

"And Miss Kirkland?" he asked. "Have you convinced her?"

The lady smiled the least bit forcedly. "Have no fear. Ellen now knows the truth."

"That is good. I can understand how it must have seemed to her. I wonder if you can realize my embarrassment? Think of a young lady undertaking one for her fiancé!"

"Good joke that," put in the physician. "How many kisses?"

"Karl!" reproved his wife.

They entered the dining room, the lady indignant, her husband chuckling and the guest a trifle constrained. Ellen stood at the far side of the oval table arranging the lilies in the center. She was pale and her eyelids were slightly swollen. When she looked up and saw Clinton across from her she did not blush. If anything she became still more pale. He was quick to observe her appearance.

"I am very sorry, Miss Kirkland," he murmured. "It must have been quite a shock."

"You must not blame yourself," she replied. "It was simply that I did not understand. Now, you see, I am quite over my excitement." She smiled uncertainly at her father. "Between compass paper can give me a sedative suggestion."

"Do you really use suggestion in your practice?" Clinton inquired of the physician as they seated themselves.

"Suggestion—little else," replied Doctor Kirkland. "You must bear in mind my specialty. Not but what, in time, the entire profession will be using suggestion as promiscuously as the Christian Scientists."

"How the Scientists would be scandalized if they heard you," said Mrs. Kirkland. "The slightest intimation that their treatment is related in any way to suggestion—"

"There is no matter; therefore everything is immaterial; therefore it is immaterial what they think," solemnly reasoned the physician.

"Isn't it?" queried Clinton.

"It is immaterial," his host flutted contradicted himself. "What they think—what anyone thinks—is exceedingly material. As a man thinketh in his heart so is he." For instance, you think you are a certain personality named Richard Clinton."

"I not only think it. I know it. Do you know yourself? Do you know what you really are? Does anyone know what he or she really is?"

"I at least have some idea who I am," replied Clinton, smiling.

"Some idea? You mean a small idea, an extremely small idea. Every day there are millions of pictures, myriads of sounds, being stored away in your subconscious mind. Of how many of these were you aware at the time and how many can you now recall? Only a few, a pitiful handful out of the ocean. Conscience man is a glowworm crawling over the vast dark field of his subconscious mind."

"You refer, I presume, to the odd cases known as double personality," remarked Clinton. "I must confess I hardly believe them possible."

"On the contrary," asserted Doctor Kirkland, "such cases are far more numerous than is commonly known."

Clinton smiled.

"She looked up at him, her tear-streaming eyes full of pitiful entreaty. "Oh, Will! won't you please try to remember who you are?"

"Miss Kirkland, pray be calm. I assure you that I am Richard Clinton. I can easily prove that I—"

"Look!" she interrupted, holding up her slender left hand, on which sparkled the diamond of a single ring. "Try to think! You must remember; you cannot have forgotten about—"

A rosy blush swept down over her pale face—"about when you put it there, dear!"

About her slender neck was a fine gold chain, from which an oval locket hung pendant on her heaving bosom. She caught up the locket and touched the spring. The jeweled front of the locket opened. Within was a miniature painting.

"Who is this—tell me, who is this?" she asked.

To see the miniature it was necessary that he should bend down close to the blushing girl. His own face flushed with embarrassment, but he seated himself on the end of the bench and leaned over with his square jaw bared and his rounded white shoulder. Had he looked only at the girl it would not have been surprising.

As it chanced, however, the young man glanced first at the miniature. At once the incredulity of his expression gave place to surprise and perplexity. He leaned over for a closer look, his cheek only a few inches from the cheek of the girl. Except for a certain pinched look about the nose the likeness of the mustache and a marked thinness of jaw and cheek, the face in the miniature was his own—it was his face as it might look in ill health.

The young man drew back, his face clearly expressive of his astonishment. "It is a—most remarkable resemblance," Miss Kirkland. I no longer wonder that you were deceived at the first, and this continued delusion on your part can, no doubt, be accounted for by the intensity of that first impression."

"You still refuse to believe!" she cried. "You do not recognize your own picture! Can nothing make you remember?"

Another pretty girl thinks Clinton is Will.

MEN'S SEVEN SHOPPING AGES

Periods of Life Which All Salesmen Recognize as Unchangeable as Nature's Laws.

Merchants divide their customers into seven classes according to age. First there is the toddler age when all articles of wear are selected without consulting the personal taste of the wearer. Then comes the "teen age" when the chief concern is to find clothing made of some fabric that will resist the rough surfaces of cellar doors, tree trunks, outbuildings, and other prominences on which small boys and girls will climb in spite of all attempts in educating them otherwise. Third is the sweetheart period, when boys and girls first find that they shouldn't scratch each other's eyes out. It is at this time they begin to take a first interest in clothes. The tendency is toward loud ties, striped socks, fancy dresses, etc., to the delight and profit of the merchants. Fourth, comes the courting age during which each sex is looking for his or her life mate. Each dresses with the chief purpose of pleasing the opposite sex. Candy merchants, flower shops and theaters reap a rich harvest from the folks of this period. Fifth stage is the early-wed. The young folks are becoming established in a home. They first learn the real value of money and the joy of citizenship. Sixth, the practical age. In 60 homes out of 100, the problem frequently arises of economy. Consequently, sales of all kinds appeal to the mothers of this age. Seventh and last, the sunset age, that glorious period of life rich in its experiences and friendship. Comfort is about the only appeal that salesmen can make to this period of life.

The Parent's Assistant.

The son of Mr. Newby-Rich wanted to be an auctioneer. His father had intended him for a learned profession, but promised to think it over. Meeting a friend, Mr. Risen-from-the-Ranks, he confided to him the dilemma, and asked for his view of auctioneering as a calling. "Well," said this authority on short cuts to wealth, "it's like this: An auctioneer order 'ave an 'ammer and an 'end, an' the 'ammer ain't a baton o' use without the 'end."

Major Robert E. Marsh Appoints Men Who Have Earned Their Rank

June 15, Major Roy C. Vandercrook, who organized the Michigan State Police, gave up his place of command and was succeeded by Major Robert E. Marsh, formerly captain in charge of the upper peninsula troop. It had originally been intended that this change should take place May 1, but various matters of duty—including the conduct of the Brown murder case at Mt. Clemens—caused the former commander to retain his post longer than he had planned.

June 16, Robert E. Marsh took command of the Michigan State Police and at that time the new disposition and assignment of officers and troops was announced. The force under Major Marsh consists of the headquarters troop at East Lansing and four field troops with headquarters at Negaunee, Grand Rapids, Flint and Traverse City.

Captain F. W. High is in command of the headquarters troop and in charge of the school. Lieutenant William Davey is quartermaster. Connected with the headquarters troop is the Hudson detachment.

Captain A. A. Downing is in charge of Troop 1. Detachments are located at Trout Lake, Rock, Hermansville, Alfred, Iron River, Bessemer, Rockland and Manistique.

Captain Ralph G. Strope is in command of Troop 2 at Grand Rapids, with patrols covering the surrounding section.

Lieutenants Caesar Scavarda and I. H. Marmon are in command of Troop 3, the former having charge of the Flint and Saginaw detachments and the latter the detachments at Plymouth, Rockwood, Rochester and Imlay City.

Captain Wakeman is in command of Troop 4, with Lieutenant John Fagan as second in command. Detachments are located at Gaylord, Pellston and Honor.

The new commander finds himself at the head of a staff of officers who are trained military men as well as being men who have distinguished themselves in the state police service. Some have been in the regular army, others in the National Guard and regular army, and others in the national guard.

The fact that promotions have been made from the ranks and that officers have won their way to the top by their own ability, has done much to increase the spirit and morale of the force, and the new leaders have given an incentive to those below them in rank to seek promotion by the same means. As long as the remuneration of the officers of the state police is lower than what they might be expected to earn in civil life, there will be changes in the service from time to time and the men in the ranks can look forward to securing commissions later as they earn them by bravery and ability to do their duty well and intelligently.

Major Robert E. Marsh is a National Guard veteran, having served under Major Vandercrook in the old days in the Lansing battery. His service in the state police has brought out qualities of leadership which made him the logical successor to Major Vandercrook as well as having the natural preference through seniority. When the first commander of the state police decided to return to newspaper work, Governor Albert E. Sleeper announced the appointment of Captain Marsh to fill the vacancy.

It will be recalled that Captain Marsh suffered a severe wound in the course of duty last year, when he was shot in the neck by a whiskey runner near Crystal Falls. He has almost entirely recovered from this injury.

Below are brief biographies of other officers of the force.

CAPT. CHARLES E. WAKEMAN, now in command of the Traverse City detachment, enlisted in the State Police early in June, 1917. He was first a sergeant in the Fourth Troop under Capt. Koch; served during the winter of 1917 at Detroit; was promoted to lieutenant in 1918, and shortly after was detailed to take the Dundee detachment. He served with the Second Troop at Flint for a time and was later transferred to the Grand Rapids district. After serving as district commander he was promoted to captain, May 1, 1920, and given command of the Fourth Troop and sent to Traverse City to establish the post in that region.

CAPT. ARCHIE A. DOWNING enlisted in the Michigan State Police as a trooper June 17, 1917. After ten days' training at the post he was sent to the upper peninsula on strike duty. He has been in the upper peninsula ever since, with the exception of the period during which he served in the U. S. army. He returned to the Michigan State Police December 22, 1918. He has figured in many raids on I. W. W. and radicals, and will be remembered for his record-breaking ride from Bessemer to Iron River, over an untraveled road, covering the distance of 94 miles in 38 hours. He was in charge of a raid at Iron Mountain recently which netted 4,000 gallons of liquor.

CAPT. RALPH G. STROPE was a member of the Michigan National Guard and served under Col. R. C. Vandercrook and Capt. Robert E. Marsh in Battery A, Michigan National Guard from May 7, 1914 to May 7, 1917. He was called into federal service July 15, 1917, with the Michigan National Guard. On October 31, 1917, he was commissioned second lieutenant and field artillery and served overseas with the 119th F. A., 32d Division. He saw service on the Alsace Lorraine front and also the Toul front. He was commissioned first lieutenant, F. A., in August after he returned as an instructor to the United States, commanding Battery D, 33d F. A., from September 3, 1918 to December 13, 1918. He enlisted as a trooper in the Michigan State Police April 7, 1919, working his way up to the rank of captain. Capt. Strope has been active in stopping the liquor traffic along the southern border, and he is now in charge of the western district, with headquarters at Grand Rapids.

CAPT. F. W. HIGH is a veteran of the command. He is a veterinary surgeon by profession and has taken particular charge of the mounts of the command and of supplies and equipment in connection therewith, and also of stabling and general care of horses. However, Capt. High has also taken a part in the field work of the State Police and has been present upon some important raids were made. He was with Capt. Marsh and Lieut. Vandercrook the night that Capt. Marsh was shot by a bootlegger near Crystal Falls.

LIEUT. JOHN FAGAN enlisted as a trooper in the Michigan State Police April 19, 1917. The following October found him a corporal and in December he was made a sergeant. He resigned from the force early in 1918 to enter the army and after serving overseas, he returned in July, 1919. He re-enlisted in the State Police on August 1, 1919, as a corporal and was made a sergeant in October of that year. He was promoted to lieutenant May 1, 1920, and has served during his entire career with the Constabulary in the upper peninsula.

During his service abroad Lieut. Fagan became engaged to a French girl and they were recently married in New York.

LIEUT. CAESAR J. SCAVARDA has won his way up from the ranks by personality, nerve and exceptional ability. He has been stationed in the upper peninsula and is known from one end to the other of that district as being absolutely fearless and as man of the type that always gets his man. His service has been excellent throughout and he has made many excellent arrests and shown good judgment in varying situations.

LIEUT. I. H. MARMON enlisted in the Michigan State Police July 17, 1917, and was entrusted with important guard duty during the war at plants making munitions and supplies for the army. Afterward he spent four months in the Ohio border patrol during the time that whisky smugglers were most active.

He was placed in charge of the investigation bureau at East Lansing May 1, 1919, and has been in charge of plain-clothes work for the department since. Previous to his service with the state police Lieut. Marmon was in the service of the United States government and the state of Mississippi in connection with civil engineering work and surveys.

LIEUT. WILLIAM DAVEY has been attached to the headquarters troop at East Lansing and is familiar with the office work and business management of the force. He is now quartermaster in charge of purchases and supplies.

Several additional officers will be appointed as the need arises. The force is now considerably below maximum strength and will be recruited up during the summer. The pay of the State Police is $65 per month for recruits, with increases in a short time to $70 and $75 per month, the state furnishing uniform and subsistence.

FREE METHODIST CONGREGATION HELD MEETINGS AT LEECE'S GROVE SUNDAY.

The Free Methodist grove meeting held Sunday July 4th was a success from the commencing of the love feast at 10 a. m. till the Benediction of the evening service and will be long remembered by those present. The love feast was conducted by Brother Frank Griffin to which the Holy Spirit set His seal by the ringing testimonies of the children of God. After this was preaching services conducted by Rev. Daniel Skanes which opened by the people singing "My Country 'tis of Thee," followed with the "Battle Hymn of the Republic." As this is probably Rev. Skanes last trip to our city for a while as the conference will move him to a new field he brought in along with his service a detail of the work being done here by the Free Methodists since their beginning about a year ago. Conference added this point to his regular circuit but it was too much for him to look after alone so he secured your humble servant to finish out the year. The class first started with six members and today have about seventeen; also through the help of the people we have one hundred and fifty dollars in the bank for the purchase of the property upon as the papers can be made out, besides about ninety dollars for seats and repairs on the building. We have the paint and paper ordered and as soon as these arrive will start work to make a neat little place of worship and one which will be a credit to the city. After the morning service the people ate their dinner under the beautiful shaded oaks and had a good social visit. In the afternoon Rev. R. Carpenter conducted the services. Then in the evening at the church we listened to a stirring sermon by Rev. Skanes. We wish to say here that much credit is due to Rev. Skanes and his wife for the work being in as good a condition as it is. We enjoyed having them with us very much for they were a great encouragement to all. While there was not as many attended the services as we expected yet we had a good crowd, people coming from Manistota, Frederic and surrounding countries. We feel encouraged and are going to push forward in His name. Rev. R. Carpenter.

Scots All Lovers of Dogs.
Scotland is a great sheep-growing country, yet it loves the dog; gives him his due in life and revere him in death. At the castle in Edinburgh there is a little plot of ground where the dogs of the Scottish soldiers are buried; it is a charming spot, and on many little tombstones there are tender tributes to departed friends. In front of Saint Giles cathedral in the same noble city, there is a monument to a little skye terrier, and upon it carved in stone, an inscription to Robbie, who refused to leave the churchyard where his master was buried, and died upon his grave.

If you are a tax payer or have children going to school in Grayling or have any interest whatsoever in the Grayling schools it is your privilege to attend the annual school meeting at the school auditorium next Monday night. At this meeting the people are supreme and are privileged to make any suggestions for the good of the schools or voice their opinions as they may desire; here is the only time and place when the people may have anything to say. After that time the Board of trustees are supreme and they control the schools in accordance with their ideas or according to suggestions made at the annual meeting if approved by them. The Avalanche has tried each year to get the people to take more interest in this annual meeting but it seems that it is considered of too little importance by most people to require their attendance. This is wrong. It is the biggest and most costly institution in our commonwealth, and also the most important as it deals with the prime of educating our children. This should be sufficient reason for your presence at the meeting. Next Monday night; for men and women.

DEMOCRATS BACK PACT AND TREATY

DECLARE FOR RATIFICATION IN ORDER TO "PRESERVE NATION'S HONOR."

IRISH AND WET ISSUE FOUGHT

Platform Committee Inserts Planks Expressing Sympathy For Ireland and Armenians.

San Francisco.—The Democratic platform, as drafted by the sub-committee of nine and submitted to the full committee, declares for ratification of the Peace Treaty as a requisite to preserve the honor and integrity of the nation.

It advocates collective bargaining for farmers; opposes compulsory arbitration of labor disputes; declares for recognition of the new Mexican government when it has established order, and calls on the legislatures of Tennessee, Florida and North Carolina to ratify the suffrage amendment.

In many respects, the platform follows that adopted by the Virginia Democrats and publicly approved by President Wilson. The League of Nations plank in particular was taken virtually as a whole from the Virginia platform, though in other respects there have been modifications and many new subjects have been added.

Fight On Convention Floor. The wet and dry, and the Irish question brought a lot of fireworks into action.

Aside from the wet and dry issue, the biggest fight was centered in the Irish plank. Overruling its subcommittee, the committee threw out the administration plank proposing to leave the Irish problem to the League of Nations and adopted in its stead a declaration of sympathy and a pledge to take whatever diplomatic action would be in consonance with international comity.

In making their decision the platform makers also rejected by a 2 to 1 vote the plank proposed by organized Irish sympathizers and backed by a caucus of about 200 convention delegates for diplomatic recognition of the Irish republic.

The subcommittee's plank on Armenia also was rejected by the full committee. The plank is understood to have declared that the United States should consider it a duty to see that complete independence and order was guaranteed to the new Armenian republic.

The committee adopted, however, by an overwhelming vote, a substitute plank, offered by Senator Beckham, of Kentucky, expressing sympathy for the Armenian people and promising assistance in so far as it shall be considered possible and proper.

Candidates Large in Numbers. The list of candidates who were placed before the convention for nomination were as follows: William G. McAdoo, New York. A. Mitchell Palmer, Pennsylvania. James M. Cox, Ohio.

Homer S. Cummings, Connecticut. Robert L. Owen, Oklahoma. Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Nebraska. Alfred E. Smith, New York. Edward I. Edwards, New Jersey. Edwin T. Meredith, Iowa.

James W. Gerard, New York. John W. Davis, West Virginia. Furnifold M. Simmons, N. Carolina. Carter Glass, Virginia. Francis B. Harrison, Philippines.

TYPE OF HOME NOW POPULAR

Shingled Dutch Colonial House Has Artistic Appearance.

ROOMS ARE WELL ARRANGED

Colonial Balance is Preserved in the Interior—Will Accommodate Good-Sized Family—Not Expensive to Build.

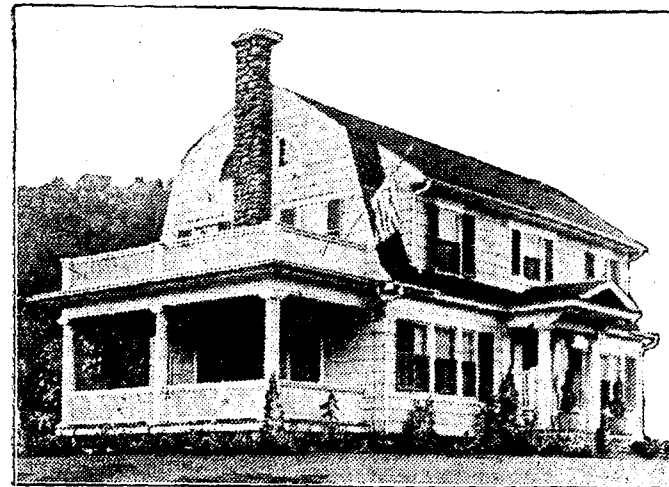

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 187 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Dutch colonial houses are having a steadily increasing popularity with home builders. They have the beauty of the colonial exterior, coupled with the quaint roof treatment of the homes of Holland, an architectural style that was transplanted into this country in colonial times. And coupled with these advantages, the Dutch colonial makes possible great economy in the use of the interior.

An excellent example of a shingled Dutch colonial house is shown in the accompanying illustration. The central entrance and the balanced windows, those on each side of the door being duplicates, follow the colonial, while the roof treatment is essentially Dutch.

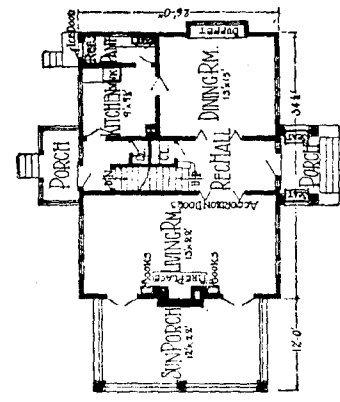

This house is of wood construction, set on a concrete foundation, and its outer walls are covered with shingles, specially treated to give the silvery effect of age. The house proper is 20 feet wide by 34 feet 6 inches deep, with a porch projection of 30 feet. It contains seven rooms and bath, beside the porch and balcony, the former of which may be inclosed as a living porch and the latter as a sleeping porch.

How the rooms are arranged and their dimensions are shown by the floor plans. However, there are several features of the interior that deserve special mention.

The colonial balance is preserved in the interior. On either side of the reception hall, which is of good width, are the living room and dining room. The former is a large room, 13 by 22 feet. The placing of the fireplace in the center of the front wall is unusual, but attractive. It is a broad fireplace and on either side are cases for books. Double French doors on both sides of the fireplace lead to the porch. It can be imagined how good this arrangement is when the porch is inclosed. The dining room is 13 by 15 feet, with a buffet built into a window bay, the windows, of course, being above. Triple windows, corresponding with those in the living room, also contribute to the cheerfulness of this room. The kitchen is 9 by 9 feet 6 inches, and off it is a good-sized pantry, so ar-

FIRST UNITED STATES COINS

Fanciful Designs and Mottos Marked the Earliest Issue of the Nation's Currency.

The Fugios were the earliest coins issued by the authority of the United States, and were of copper. It was in April, 1787, that the congress of the United States authorized the board of treasury to contract for 300 tons of copper coin of the federal standard "agreeably to the proposition of Mr. James Jarvis, provided that the premium to be allowed to the United States, on the account of the copper coin contracted for be not less than 15 per cent," and that "it be coined at the expense of the contractor, but under the inspection of an officer appointed and paid by the United States."

It is presumed that this copper coin contract was made as directed, for on Friday, July 6, 1787, the congress adopted this resolution: "That the board of treasury direct the contractor for the copper coinage to stamp on one side of each piece the following device, viz.: Thirteen circles linked together and a small circle in the middle with the words 'United States' around it; and in the center the words 'We are one.' On the other side of the same piece the following device, viz.: A dial with the hours expressed on the face of it; a meridian sun above, on one side of which is to be the word 'Fugio' and on the other side the date '1787'; below the dial the words, 'Mind your own business.'"

A large number of these coins were made and although they bear the date 1787 it is very probable that they were issued up to 1793, when the government established a mint.

Besides the general term Fugio these first coins were also known by various names as the Franklin cent, Sun Dial, Ring and Mind-your-own-business. It was known as the Franklin cent because of one of his mottoes expressed thereon.

Second Floor Plan.

the first floor and the number of bedrooms make it ample for a good-sized family. Also it is not expensive, comparatively, to build.

Costs of building have been decreasing during the last of the spring and early summer, and now, those who know declare, are as low as they will be during the year. No one who wants a home should hesitate about getting it started. The country is a million homes short of its needs and unless greater progress is made during the last half of the year than has been accomplished during the first part those who rent their homes will find an even greater problem of securing a home next year than this.

To build a home does not require as great an amount of money as many persons believe. The owner of a fairly well located home building site can get his home planned and built and will be able to pay for it as he able.

Bankers, contractors and home-building associations always are ready to finance a home-building project, and will allow the owner to pay the cost in installments. While it may appear to be a considerable of an undertaking to obligate one's self to pay a certain fixed amount each month for a period of years, nevertheless that is exactly what he has to do if he rents. And at the end the renter has nothing to show for his expenditures.

Every person who rents a home owes it to himself and his family to at least investigate the possibility of securing a home of his own. The home owner is a better and more prosperous member of the community in which he lives, and secures, in the satisfaction of being a property owner, greater consideration both from business associates and from those he comes in contact with in a social way. Right now stop and think of those you know who own their homes. Then compare their standing with those who rent.

The colonial home shown in the illustration is merely a suggested design for prospective home builders. As good as it is, both in exterior and interior design, it may not coincide with the ideas of every home builder. It is an easy matter to get a wide selection of home designs to choose from. The local architect, contractor and building material dealer all have a great variety of home-building plans that are available for prospective builders.

No matter what sort of home you want there usually is one that will meet your ideas of exterior appearance and interior arrangement that can be built for the amount of money you can afford to pay for a home.

THE WORK IN 'PATERNALISM'

Policy of Adopting Orphaned Children is Arousing Interest All Over the Country.

A total of three French war orphans, two girls and a boy, had already been assured of adoption in the American Legion's campaign for continuation of the late A. E. F.'s overseas paternalism, by contributions received at national headquarters of the Legion up to the close of business on May 25.

Members of the national headquarters staff of the Legion contributed $150 for adoption of the first two orphans, and the American Red Cross will be asked to select for them a boy and a girl with as many as possible for the next year or more. Miss Lula B. Vize, a member of the headquarters staff, assisted in raising the money for the orphans.

The first post to send in its $75 contribution to the fund was Kirt Ross post No. 16, Stockton, Cal. In a letter of transmittal, Ted Cloudsley, a member of the post and editor of the San Joaquin Legion, official American Legion newspaper of San Joaquin county, Cal., writes in part:

"We were told that there was a wide range of choice for us, so I hope you can secure as our war orphan a little Alsace-Lorraine girl of from six to ten years whose father was killed in battle. You see, we have a big post here and a big twice-a-month newspaper and such a little orphan would suit the boys best because of the sentiment attached."

"Please be sure that we receive the little one's picture and address. We will put her picture in our publication and would like to have her write to us. At Christmas time, too, we will be able to remember her."

THE RETURN OF THE DEAD

Red Cross Will Send Advance Notification of Arrival of Bodies From Over There.

The American Red Cross, as an especial courtesy to the American Legion, hereafter will send advance notification of the arrival of the bodies of American soldiers from overseas to posts of the Legion in towns and cities in which reinterment is to be made.

The Red Cross home service in each community will receive notice from Hoboken and in turn notify the relatives of the decedent and inform the Legion. Information will be received in time for local posts to make arrangements for the reception of the bodies and to provide for the formal honors due their dead comrades. Where there is more than one Legion post in a community, the county headquarters of the Legion will be notified, that it may designate the post or posts which shall render the honor.

At the request of Col W. Lamkin, chief of the division of rehabilitation of the Federal Board for Vocational Education, Gerald J. Murphy, national vocational officer of the American Legion, was designated by the national commander, Franklin D'Olier, as the legion's representative to attend a recent conference of the board's district vocational officers at Washington, D. C., recently. The legion has inaugurated a plan of co-operation with the federal board, extending to each of the more than 2,000 posts of the organization in every state and community throughout the United States and many foreign countries, by which thousands of disabled ex-service men are being rounded up and gotten into immediate training every week. Plans for continuing the campaign until every pending case is definitely settled and all eligible persons are receiving the vocational training to which they are entitled, were laid at the conference.

The latest issue of The Crook Whizz-Bang, published spasmodically at Chicago by Gen. "He fought the Indians tooth and nail as commander of the departments of the Platte and Arizona," the article reads. "His last official duties were performed as head of the Department of Missouri."

A striking tribute to the Legion's humanitarianism was recently paid by J. J. Gater of Clarkburg, W. Va., in an address at exercises under the auspices of the Parish post of that city. Mr. Gater told how his son contracted tuberculosis in the service and was discharged and sent to his home in a dying condition. The Legion's service division at national headquarters took charge of the case, obtained proper medical treatment and compensation and back pay. "Today, through the efforts of the American Legion," the father said, "my son is living and everything is in as good condition as could be expected. SERVICE RECORD OF NATION

City, County and State Histories Will Afford Voluminous and Valuable Data.

If the present progress in making county and city and state war histories is maintained, there will be a vast library of local "who-was-who in the war" books by the year 2020.

Not only are towns, counties and states preparing their own war histories, but colleges and schools of all kinds also are getting up collective service records. Large industrial concerns are doing the same thing.

Best results in history making seem to have been achieved in counties, where the records of the county draft board served as a starting point and where all other sources of information have been utilized. Livingston county, Illinois, furnishes a typical example of a county which has been painstaking in its effort to compile a reliable war history.

A committee of seven was appointed in this county to have charge of the soldiers' and sailors' record. Before the records of the local exemption board were closed, a list was compiled of all registrants of the county who had entered the service by enlistment or induction, the date of entry into the service and the camp to which they were first sent. Newspaper files were combed to obtain as many additional names as possible. The list was then published in the newspaper with the request that all names not included be reported to the war records committee.

A questionnaire then was mailed to each service man or woman. Follow-up letters were used to insure the return of the questionnaires. The questionnaires had spaces for practically all the information which appears on the soldier's discharge certificate and for many other details, such as citations in full and special honors. A special section will be devoted to the records of those who died in service. Their photographs will be included.

LAUDS SPIRIT OF MEMBERS

Hilton Brown, Jr., Post No. 85, of Indianapolis, Composed of Union Men, Applauds Expose.

The Hilton U. Brown, Jr., Post No. 85 of the American Legion at Indianapolis, composed mostly of members of organized labor, recently adopted the following resolution:

"WHEREAS, Several members and prospective members of the Hilton U. Brown, Jr., Post (No. 85, Indiana) American Legion, have been asked by outsiders to drop their membership in the legion or to refrain from making application for membership because of the imagined incompatibility of membership with membership in a labor organization; and

"WHEREAS, Most of the members of the aforesaid post are also members of labor organizations in the printing trades; and

"WHEREAS, It is fair to assume that they have been able to find out by experience whether there is anything in the oath or obligations of either their union or the legion which in any way interferes with or compromises the objects of the other in its particular field of activities; and

"WHEREAS, The members of the aforesaid post regret the credence given to false rumors that the legion is in any way committed to a policy at variance with a cordial and wholesome attitude toward all staunch American citizens eligible to membership;

"THEREFORE, Be It Resolved, That the Hilton U. Brown, Jr., Post (No. 85, Ind.) American Legion, condemns the miscreants who have falsely defined its attitude toward free thought and free action within the limits of the law, and applauds the spirit of its members and prospective members who exposed the insidious practices of anti-American agitators and stood on the rights of free men."

FIVE MINUTE CHATS ABOUT OUR PRESIDENTS

By JAMES MORGAN

JAMES MADISON

1751, March 16—James Madison born at Port Conway, Va.
1772—Graduated at Princeton.
1778—In Virginia legislature.
1780-3, 1785-6—In Continental congress.
1787—In constitutional convention.
1789-97—In congress.
1794—Married Dorothy Todd Payne.
1801-9—Secretary of state.

AS JAMES MADISON made a great name for himself before entering the presidency and added nothing to it while in the White House, it must be that he was a good deal of a man but not much of a president.

Like all the more famous Virginians, Madison was not of the highest aristocracy, but the son of a plain, well-to-do farmer in an outlying county. His early life was passed at Montpelier, the farm which his grandfather had wrested from the Indians; from it he drew his only private income and at last he was buried in its soil. He was dependent on his father until he was fifty, when the latter died and the place became his own, with 100 slaves, who continued always to address him simply as "Master Jimmy."

Standing only five feet six inches and one-quarter inches, he was, with Grant the smallest of our presidents.

Dolly Madison.

Naturally thin and frail his zeal for study nearly wrecked his health while a student at Princeton college, where for months at a time he slept only three hours out of the 24. Unfitted for military duty when the Revolution came, he went to the Virginia legislature instead. Yet this seemingly broken-down young man was destined to be the longest lived of all the presidents, with the single exception of John Adams.

When a candidate for re-election to the legislature, Madison revolted against the old Virginia custom of setting up the drinks. His morality was mistaken for stinginess and the thirsty voters flocked to the capacious barrel of his opponent, who was elected. The defeated candidate had to wait a dozen years for his first chance to distinguish himself. Still no time was lost, for while he was waiting, he diligently prepared to meet opportunity when it should come and made a close study of all governments, ancient and modern.

If Madison had not been crossed and blessed in love, posterity might not catch him on his human side at all and only yawn over this prosy, serious, studious, cool-tempered ungraceful, weakened, little great man. He was already a mature bachelor of thirty-two and a member of the Continental congress, when a sixteen-year-old girl in his Philadelphia boarding house was the first to touch a soft spot in his heart. A young clergyman who hung and sighed over her harpsichord cut him out, and he was painfully awakened from his first dream of love by a letter of dismissal.

Madison was past forty, and well into his Indian summer, when he became involved in still another heart-breaking romance at Philadelphia. Only, instead of a lady boarder, he fell in love this time with a landlady's daughter, Dolly Payne Todd, who was only twenty-six, had lost her husband and was living with her mother, "who received into her house a few gentlemen boarders." Among them was Senator Aaron Burr of New York. Madison himself was staying at another house, where he and two other future presidents, Jefferson and Monroe, were living three in a room.

There the fame of the pretty young Quakeress traveled to him, and he asked Burr—they were at Princeton together—to take him to see her. The match flamed up in the flash of an eye, and Dolly and her boy were borne away to Montpelier, where she proved her tactfulness and kindness by dwelling in peace under the same roof with her mother-in-law thirty-five years.

A FUGITIVE PRESIDENT

1809—James Madison, inaugurated President, aged fifty-seven.
1812—(June 19) War declared.
1814—(Aug. 24-27) In flight from the British. (Dec. 28) treaty of peace.
1817—Madison retired from Presidency.
1826—Rector in University of Virginia.
1829—In constitutional convention.
1836—(June 28) died, aged eighty-five.

BUT for the smiles of his blooming Dolly, Madison's administration would be a desert without an oasis, over whose dreary expanse the weary biographer would wander at last for human anecdotes. Her bubbling spirits relieved the austerity of Jeffersonian simplicity and won her a popularity that has been equaled, if at all, among the mistresses of the White House, only by Mrs. Cleveland.

Unless Grant must be excepted, Madison is the only president who found the presidency an anticlimax to his career. One of the really great law-givers of the nation, he was without executive force.

With a weak cabinet, this gentle, sweet tempered, peace loving scholar found himself adrift on the turbid sea of the great Napoleonic wars. Perhaps it was no longer possible to keep us out of the war when at last the United States was the only neutral left in the civilized world.

After 20 years of kicking and cuffing from both sides in the European conflict, bullied by England and led to by Napoleon, the country was sore all over when the "warhawks" of congress, under the youthful Henry Clay, seized the tiller of the ship of state from Madison's irresolute hand and recklessly pointed the vessel straight into the teeth of the storm.

The sun-board East was more for peace and at that time the military section was the new West, where the Tennesseans and Kentuckians, Indians and Ohioans were lustily shouting "On to Canada!" Overborne by their rash counsels, Madison consented, as he said, to "throw forward the flag of the country, sure that the people would press onward and defend it."

Without competent civilian military leaders, without financial credit, without war equipment, the people could not press onward, as any history of the dismal war of 1812 will tell you. Even the capital was left undefended, and Madison, "in a little round hat with a big cockade," ran about in helpless bewilderment as the British marched upon Washington.

With the invaders entering at one side of the defenseless town, the president fled at the other. As he turned he saw the flames shooting up behind him, he fled faster and farther. While the British commander was blowing out candles on his dinner table that he might feast in the light of the burning White House, his fugitive master was hiding in a forest.

After an absence of three days, a heavy-hearted, shattered, houseless president returned to view the charred walls of his official residence and of the capitol. At every turn he was greeted by ugly mutterings of the general disposition to make him the scapegoat for all the national shortcomings in a war that had been thrust upon him. But with victory at New Orleans and the return of peace, the voice of the faultfinder was drowned in the hum of sudden prosperity. And in the closing days of his administration Madison was cheered by many assurances that his countrymen were not forgetful of the 40 years that he had served them in pure devotion.

Like John Adams, he emerged from his retirement to sit in the constitutional convention of his state, where the aged statesman closed his active public life, as he had opened it, with a sentiment of humanity for the slaves.

AN IRRITABLE, fault finding disposition is often due to a disordered stomach. A man with good digestion is nearly always good natured. A great many have been permanently cured of stomach troubles by Chamberlain's Tablets after years of suffering. These tablets strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. Try them. They only cost a quarter.

THINKS CURRIE STRONGER.

The Bay City Democrat in their issue of June 17 makes mention of the congressional political situation in the 10th congressional district and give an opinion of the strength of Congressman Currie.

This paper stated: "The Chicago nominations will undoubtedly have a bearing on the local republican congressional situation. To keep political observers the Harding nomination will add considerably to the strength of Congressman Currie for more reasons than one."

While former Congressman Roy O. Woodruff had not announced his ambition to return to the lower national house as the Tenth district representative, his friends have been urging his candidacy, especially in the event of success of the progressive element at Chicago. Mayor Mundy's name was also being advanced for the district job, but he, too, seems now inclined to keep out of it. Mundy was a strong Loudon adherent. Of course both these men may yet get into the game at the coming primary.

Currie kept out of the presidential scrap. He has the support of the more conservative republicans and of a goodly number to whom he has given special service in Washington as their representative. His courtesies to many, especially those who had sons in the army or navy, are remembered. The way he gave him an unusual opportunity for such service and he has been on the job. Currie's attitude as a "dry" is also well known and the fact that the Chicago convention did not bring the liquor problem into its platform will help him. The congressman's attitude towards labor made him some enemies, but his friends claim that he has been grossly misunderstood in this matter and that when the situation is clarified he will not be the loser even in this.

"Taking him all in all, day in and day out, Currie has been on the job and his supporters contend that the record he has made commend him to support for re-election."

A GOOD FRIEND.

A good friend stands by you when in need. Grayling people tell how Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test. Niels H. Nielsen, carpenter of Park St. endorsed Doan's three years ago and again confirms the story. Could you ask for more convincing testimony?

My back ached day in and day out and was stiff I could hardly bend one way or the other," says Mr. Nielsen. "The kidney secretions were too frequent in action, too. The last few times I have had these complaints I have taken a few boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills from Lewis' Drug Store and I have found they do me more good than anything else for they have always cured the attack in short order." (Statement given October 11, 1916.)

On April 28, 1920, Mr. Nielsen said: "Doan's Kidney Pills cured me completely several years ago of a bad attack of kidney trouble. I am glad to confirm my former statement which I made in 1916 praising them."

FREDERIC BREEZES.

The club house at the Water Shed ranch was struck by lightning and burned one day last week during an electric storm. The loss is reported to be about $2,000.

Mrs. Charles Craven and daughter, Miss Emma have gone to the southern part of the state for an extended visit with friends.

Mrs. C. S. Barber is enjoying a visit from her sister, Mrs. Maggie Niver of California.

L. A. Gardner has a fine new Chevrolet car.

There was a party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Sheldon last Wednesday evening, and all present had a pleasant time.

The gardens in Frederic are looking fine.

Mrs. Liland Smock of Grayling and little son are visiting her many friends here.

Some of the Frederic people attended the Grove meeting of the Free Methodist church in Grayling Sunday. Rev. Skanes and wife from Kingsley were present and the former gave a good lecture in the forenoon.

In the afternoon Rev. Carpenter and Mr. F. D. Griffin gave nice talks.

Let everybody boost. We don't want slackers. Crops are looking fine.

Mr. Schrieves is about done haying on the Forbush farm.

George Sheldon is hustling his hay right along.

VALUABLE HORSE SAVED.

Expected Horse Would Die—Now Sleek and Healthy.

In reporting his experience, Mr. J. C. Huste, of Rock Bridge Baths, Va., stated: "My horse is the best advertisement you would want for Dr. LeGear's Stock Powders. He was in a run down fix and poor and I thought he would die soon. I got some of Dr. LeGear's Stock Powders—and today he is as fine a looking horse as you can see in this section. I only used a few boxes of Dr. LeGear's Stock Powders."

Mr. Huste benefited by the advice of Dr. LeGear. By following the Doctor's advice you can also keep your stock sleek and healthy. Get Dr. LeGear's Stock Powders from your dealer; feed it to your horses, milk cows, steers, hogs and sheep as per directions. Satisfaction or money back.—Dr. L. D. LeGear Med. Co., St. Louis, Mo.
